

Dear First Semester Students,

we, the Fachschaft (student association) of the Department of chemistry, welcome you in Marburg! We invite you to participate in our Student Introduction Week (StIW) from Tuesday, the 07.04.2026 so that you can find your way around when the lectures start on the 13.04.2026. Of course, everything is voluntary but highly recommended for a good start of your studies! You can definitely still join us later on in the week, if you're not already here on Tuesday.

Please check for changes beforehand and also your students mail account for further information! Nevertheless, we are providing all necessary information using mail in the beginning of the StIW.

Dear Master-Student-in-Marburg-Beginners, of course, you are also cordially invited to participate! We will provide you with informations about the master program and you can certainly ask us questions. The rest of the program may be interesting for you as well to better get to know the city and the university.

Best regards

Your Fachschaft Chemie
