MARBURG REPLICATION GAMES

Scan to register

NOVEMBER 27th, 2026

MARBURG, GERMANY

We are looking for professors, postdocs, and graduate students interested in a one-day reproduction and replication challenge.

The Marburg Games will focus on two areas:

- Conflict and political violence
- Early childhood education and health interventions

Participants will reproduce published findings and test robustness in teams matched by research interests. They will be granted co-authorship on the respective meta-paper and may publish their individual replication reports.

Join us at Marburg University, Germany, or participate virtually. Local organizers are Patrick Hufschmidt and Martin Buchner. Questions: Abel Brodeur (abrodeur@uottawa.ca).

Register individually or as a team: https://www.i4replication.org/games
